“Kitchen Table Talks”

Some parties are able to agree on the terms of their divorce without the assistance of professionals.

OR

Mediation

A third-party neutral assists the parties in reaching agreed upon terms on all issues in the divorce. Attorneys can participate (not required).

OR

Attorney-Assisted Negotiations

At least one of the parties hires a lawyer to negotiate the terms of the divorce prior to filing in court.

OR

Collaborative Divorce

Collaborative Attorneys can't represent the parties if they end up litigating. There is also a third-party neutral as part of the Collaborative team.

File Uncontested Divorce

Once there is a full agreement, the parties file in court and attend one hearing to finalize the divorce.

File Contested Divorce

There is not a full agreement yet, and one of the parties files in court to have the other party served.

Settlement Negotiations

The parties exchange financial information and various proposals for settlement. They can also choose to work with a mediator.

Court Hearings

Motion hearings; Evidentiary hearings; Status hearings; and/or Pre-Trial Conferences.

Trial Prep & Trial

This can include extensive discovery (including depositions), hiring experts, and/or a custody investigation.

Divorced!

Everyone ends up at the same destination (unless there is a reconciliation). How you get there is up to you and your spouse!

Resolving family law conflicts as painlessly + peacefully as possible

Foundations Family Law was created to be an intentionally different law firm.

Instead of creating more drama, we resolve it. Because at the end of the day, that's what's best for you and your family.

We prioritize using mediation and strategic attorney negotiations to amicably disentangle family law issues and optimize results for our clients. And the outcomes have been nothing short of stellar for the families that we work with.

If this aligns with what you are looking for in a family law attorney or mediator, we invite you to connect with us.
