Top 5 Questions to Ask your Potential
Divorce/Family Law Attorney

FAMILY LAW & MEDIATION CENTER

Choosing your divorce attorney is one of the most important decisions you'll make, and it can shape the course of your family's future.

The right attorney can mean the difference between:

- A cooperative, respectful co-parenting partnership—or ongoing conflict.
- Clear guidance on timelines, strategy, and next steps—or uncertainty, confusion, and stress.
- Confident decisions that protect your interests—or leaving outcomes to chance.

In this guide, we have some helpful questions that we would ask if hiring for our own divorce team.

FAMILY LAW & MEDIATION CENTER

1 What do you specialize in?

This may seem like an obvious question, but it's one of the most important. Family law is a complex and emotionally charged area, and you want someone who practices it every day — not a general practitioner who handles it occasionally in addition to minor crimes, bankruptcy, and personal injury.

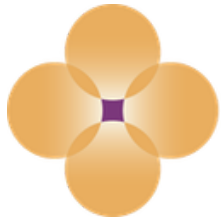

Ask your potential lawyer what percentage of their work involves divorce, custody, child support, or mediation cases. At Foundations Family Law & Mediation Center, family law is what we do — it's all that we do. Our attorneys focus exclusively on helping families navigate life transitions with clarity, compassion, and confidence.

2 What is your firm's approach to holistic care?

Legal matters don't exist in isolation. Divorce, separation, and co-parenting impact your mental health, your children, your finances, your home, and even your sense of identity. That's why our firm takes a whole-person approach to family law.

We understand that clients often need more than legal guidance — they need emotional support, financial advice, and trusted resources. Through our exclusive Purple Cloud Power Partners program, we connect clients with vetted professionals such as Certified Divorce Financial Analysts, divorce coaches, co-parenting coaches, and Certified Divorce Lending Professionals who share our mission of helping you move forward with peace and purpose.

3 How will we communicate throughout my case?

A great attorney-client relationship depends on clear, consistent communication. Ask your potential lawyer how often you can expect updates, who you'll be in contact with day-to-day, and the best ways to reach your team.

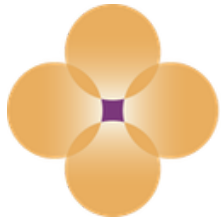

At Foundations, every client is assigned a dedicated Client Concierge to help manage logistics, answer questions, and keep communication flowing smoothly. We are also committed to timely responsiveness, and our firm policy is to provide a response to your calls and emails within one business day. You'll always know who to reach out to and what's happening in your case.

4 What is your philosophy when it comes to conflict resolution?

Some attorneys approach family law like a battlefield — but that's not always in your best interest. Ask whether your lawyer prioritizes mediation, collaboration, or litigation.

Our firm believes that peaceful doesn't mean passive. We fight for your rights and interests, but we do it in a way that reduces unnecessary conflict, saves resources, and protects your long-term relationships whenever possible.

5 How do you define success for your clients?

Every client's version of "winning" looks different. Some want to protect assets, others want to co-parent peacefully, and many just want to feel safe and respected again.

When you ask this question, listen for an answer that reflects your goals — not just a focus on "winning" in court. At Foundations, success means helping you move into your next chapter with stability, strength, and a sense of closure.

The Bottom Line

You deserve a lawyer who listens, cares, and advocates for you — not just your case. Asking the right questions helps you find the team that will support your legal, emotional, and practical needs every step of the way.
